Edith Stein (later St. Teresa Benedict of the Cross) was born on October 12,1891, the youngest of 11, as her family was celebrating Yom Kipper, the Feast of Atonement. "More than anything else, this helped make the youngest child very precious to her mother. "Begin born on this day was like a foreshadowing to Edith, a future Carmelite nun.

Edith's father, who ran a timber business, died when she had only just turned two. Her mother, a very devout, hard-working, strong willed, and truly wonderful woman, now had to fend for herself and to look after the family and their large business. However, she did not succeed in keeping up a living faith in her children. Edith lost faith in God. "I consciously decided, of my own volition, to give up praying," she said.

In 1911 she passed her exam with flying colors and enrolled at the University of Breslau to study German and history. Her interest was philosophy and in women's issues, and she passed her doctorate degree with distinction in January, 1915. She then served as a nurse in WWI in the typhus ward, worked in an operating theatre, and saw young people die.

In November, 1917, she visited a young widow, but was surprised when she actually met with a woman of faith. "This was my first encounter with the Cross and the divine power it imparts to those who bear it...it was the moment when my unbelief collapsed and Christ began to shine his light on me - Christ in the mystery of the Cross."
